John Hay Peace Path

Seattle Public Schools is committed to making its online information accessible and usable to all people, regardless of ability or technology. Meeting web accessibility guidelines and standards is an ongoing process that we are consistently working to improve.

While Seattle Public Schools endeavors to only post documents optimized for accessibility, due to the nature and complexity of some documents, an accessible version of the document may not be available. In these limited circumstances, the District will provide equally effective alternate access.

For questions and more information about this document, please contact the following:

Polo DeCano
Consulting Teacher, Restorative Practices Program
padecano@seattleschools.org

This example from John Hay is a worksheet to support students' efforts to solve conflicts and recognize each other for kind actions.

John Hay's Peace Path

Goal: Students will solve conflicts and they will also recognize each other for kind actions.

1st

Take turns naming your feeling.

I felt _____ when you _____ .

2nd

Take turns repeating what they felt and your point of view.

I heard that you felt _____ and my point of view is _____.

3rd

Take turns to share your idea to solve the problem.

My idea for how we can make this right is _____.

4th

Agree on a plan and air high five!